Clean Elections Commission Joins Our “See the Money” Project

Arizonans will soon track political spending using our new “See the Money” interactive web platform. The new tool in the final stages of development will include expanded functionality made possible through a partnership with the Citizens Clean Elections Commission.

The partnership between our office and the CCEC ensures citizens will be able to explore campaign finance information to learn about the people who write checks and politicians that cash them.

We’re excited about continuing the collaboration we’ve had with CCEC, especially on a project as important as this. Educating voters is a priority for both of our organizations and our See the Money website will revolutionize the way people view campaign contributions and political spending.

We’ll start testing later this year and anticipate a formal launch in time for the 2018 election cycle. Stay tuned!

New at the Arizona Capitol Museum!

If you’ve been to the State Capitol grounds recently, you may have noticed some changes under the copper dome.

The Arizona Capitol Museum, a division of our office, has experienced quite the transformation since we took office in 2015.
